

SELF CARE VISION BOARD

Level 2 - 4
15-40 minutes

What makes a good day?

Wellness Domains

Social + Emotional

Topic:

Self-care and emotional wellbeing

Goals:

Participant expresses feelings and creates self-care reference.

Materials (Included/Subs):

- magazines, newspapers, stickers
- writing tools - markers, crayons, pens
- blank paper (butcher paper, printer, etc)
- glue or tape
- scissors
- optional: music, computer & printer, ruler

Background:

This activity helps when words are hard to find or feelings are mixed up. The goal is understanding and is based on shared meaning-making. This means figuring out what something means to each person, so you can understand each other better. You're building a bridge, shifting the goal from agreement to connection. Each person is an active agent empowered to lead their experience. Focus on:

- "What does this feel like to you?"
- "What are we both trying to protect right now?"
- "What matters most in this moment?"

There are many ways of approaching this based on what works best for everyone and no wrong answers.

Structure / Activity:

Steps:

1. Sit side by side in a quiet space. Speak calmly and keep things simple.
 - a. "We're going to make a board that shows what helps us/you feel better."
2. Offer two clear options:
 - a. Right Now Board - This is about what helps you feel better today.
 - b. General Self-Care Board - This is about what helps you feel good.
3. Place the blank paper on the table. Explain that they'll add pictures and words that feel right for you. There are no wrong choices!
4. Provide the art materials, scissors, glue
 - a. "Is there something you want other people to know when you feel this way?"
 - b. "What comforts you in these times?"
5. When it's complete, pause and look together.
 - a. "Tell me about 1 thing on your board."
 - b. "What should I remember from this?"
6. Wrap up:
 - a. Close with validation
 - "This shows what matters to you. Thank you for sharing."
 - b. End with some body movement
 - Shake it out for 30 seconds
 - Breathing exercise
 - Lip flutter, etc

Adaptations & Safety Precautions:

- Use only for small misunderstandings or mild tension
- Not for serious conflict, fear, or agitation
- Use an emotion wheel or wellness check-in sheet.
- If the participant has fine motor issues, pre-cut the magazine images or help once image is selected.
- The participant controls how much they share
- Respect all responses as meaningful

Wellness Check-in!

Using the 8 dimensions of Wellness wheel, go through each domain of your life currently and reflect on what is giving you energy and what is draining your energy. Notice how these situations are interconnected. As you do this activity, breathe and be present. After a little while you may start to notice insights and solutions arising in your awareness that will help you with your next steps.

Energizing

(What are you excited about/grateful for right now? Label the domain.)

Draining

(What is making you nervous or feel stress right now? Label the domain.)

Interdependence

(What is the impact of your + and – situations on other domains?)
